LAZ'S NEWSLETTER

Welcome to the very first edition of the Laz Newsletter! Here you will find all the recent news on the projects I'm working on. If any of them pique your interest, I encourage you to click on the provided link for more information.

I intend to send out this newsletter once every month or so.

Happy reading!

- 1 The first thing we would like to announce is the launch of this newsletter.
- 2 The next item of interest is that there is a new Flash Fiction story on the Author's Website. The name of it is "I'm Bored". It's very short, so I suspect you won't be. 😊
It is located here: I'm Bored. Enjoy!
- 3 The next announcement is one I'm very proud of! I've been selected for inclusion in BookBub's Featured Deals. This is a big honkin' deal! Only one out of four novels that are submitted is accepted, and if you add the fact that I am a new author, only 2 months self-published, it makes it even more impressive.

This inclusion will drastically increase my exposure, since BookBub gets in front of 1.2 million avid science fiction readers in multiple English-speaking countries. Exposure is king, no matter how well you write. A new author is competing with a vast sea of titles. Getting eyeballs on your work is worth any expense. At any rate, to be selected by this well-regarded electronic broadsheet is a very great compliment, indeed, and I am sincerely honored.
- 4 And finally, work has begun in earnest on my sequel to "Dimensions of Essence". It will be set in the same universe and will occur 50 years after the events in the first book. I'm eyeing a release date of end-of-February, 2026. I'll post some samples on my Authors Website. Stay tuned for further developments!
